

The Military Contributions of a Small Town – Port Hope, Ontario –

by
George J. Swenor

Preface

This is an ongoing study, made difficult by the passage of time. It started with the desire to record the careers of a few high school friends, but then mushroomed.

With the publication of They Shall Not Grow Old (Allison & Hayward: Brandon, Manitoba), which includes a paragraph on each of some 15,000 RCAF members who were killed in World War II; the detailed work of Rob Davis of Telford, Shropshire, England, on Bomber Command crew losses; The Great Escape; The Assassination of Heydrich; and other works, the temptation to assemble details on hundreds of friends became too great.

In January 2001, with the help of Vernon White and Mike Lewis, I began to amass data on the careers of Port Hope RCAF veterans. As this study grew, so did the desire to not only include all WWII veterans, but the veterans of all wars that had affected Port Hope. I was pleased to receive willing help from Enid Sweanor, Dorothy Harcourt, Ted Fulford, and Frank Foote.

A request to the Port Hope Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion brought forth a bundle of data from Patricia Honey and Harold Wakely. Peter and Barbara Bolton contributed) and Barbara Trumper became a major sleuth in ferreting out data on hundreds of veterans.

So, this presentation is merely the continuation of a major project . . .

Editor's Note

First and foremost, I would like to thank George for his dedication in creating a project that would recognize the involvement of Port Hope veterans of all our nation's conflicts.

In 2009, as advancing years made it increasingly difficult for him to visit Port Hope regularly from his Colorado Springs home and being concerned about the future of his work, he entrusted its safekeeping to me and the Port Hope Archives, with the intention that we should both preserve and continue his efforts.

Thanks must also go to, as well as those named in George's preface, former Port Hope archivist Erin Walsh, Barbara Bolton, Barbara Trumper, David Doherty, and Mary Harwood Kennedy for their valued input; to Lee Batchelor, the structural editor of this project, and Mark Clayton, for his technical help; to the Archives of Ontario for permission to use the WWI posters; and to noted local artist, Kathryn McHolm, for her pencil sketch of the Cenotaph.

As much of George's material was largely anecdotal, any corrections, additions, or both will be greatly appreciated.

Canadians at War

While professing a strong desire to be a leader among peace-loving countries - and actually being one - Canada has been shaped more by war than by any other factor. The wars and skirmishes among the Micmac, Beothuk, Algonquin, Iroquois, Huron, Ojibwa, Cree, Kwakiutl, Haida, and other native groups prevented a united front to oppose European invasions.

The worldwide rivalry between Britain and France had numerous repercussions in North America, with painful upheavals in Newfoundland, the Maritimes, and Quebec. Many French and British regiments and navies remain part of our proud heritage. Two examples: In 1664, the Carignan Regiment was in Hungary fighting the Turks when it was ordered to proceed by foot to Atlantic ports to embark for Quebec City. From there, it proceeded, on foot again, up the Richelieu River to establish forts against British settler and Iroquois incursions.

The march of the 104th British Regiment (550 men composed mainly of Maritimers) from Fredericton to the Niagara Peninsula, starting 16 February 1813 and hacking its way through virgin forest for much of the route, lost only one man before taking part in the battles of Chippewa and Lundy's Lane.

Numerous unprovoked invasions by much-larger American forces resulted in Canadian, French, and British unity, producing such heroes as General Sir Isaac Brock from the Isle of Jersey and Colonel Charles de Salaberry. The latter's grandfather fought with Montcalm against Wolfe, but Charles joined the British in 1794 and in 1812-1813 defeated larger American forces, thus preventing the capture of Montreal and the division of Canada into two vulnerable parts. This, and the threat of Fenian raids, eventually led to Confederation in 1867.

While victorious in the field of battle, Canada lacked the statesmen to win at the peace conferences, with the resulting loss of Ohio, northern New York, parts of Michigan, Washington State, and parts of the Alaska panhandle to the United States. With its much smaller population, Canada could not have remained independent of the United States without effective Native forces, as well as the addition of British forces and leadership - which was a sacrifice, as its conflict with Napoleon demanded most of Britain's resources. Canada's reluctance to maintain forces, particularly a navy to support the Royal Navy, resulted in lukewarm British support for Canada at the peace tables.

Canadian contributions in two world wars were massive and effective and have been largely unknown. For a far-flung nation of under seven million people, successes like Vimy Ridge and having eight of the world's top forty-four air aces (seventeen German, seven British, five French, two Australian, two South African, two Irish, and one Austro-Hungarian), as well as huge contributions of materials, money, and debt-forgiveness, gave Canada world status.

In 1939, at the outbreak of WWII, Canada had only eleven million people, yet played a major role that was hidden in Anglo-American phraseology. In fact, Mackenzie King had to repeatedly telephone Roosevelt to have him change terminology from Anglo-American to "ABC" (American, British, and Canadian) forces in the invasions of Sicily and France. Of course, this still left out the valuable contributions of the Poles and others. The Canadian media could not compete with that of the United States, so the world - and too many Canadians - learned little of Canadian contributions.

Canadians have joined other peoples' conflicts. 40,000 volunteers, including Edward E. Dodds of Hope Township, fought in the American Civil War - mainly for the North - earning forty-five Medals of Honor, yet the U.S. threatened Canada with invasion because she was also caring for Southern wounded. In the Vietnam War, we heard much about the U.S. draft dodgers who fled to Canada, but the fact that 40,000 Canadians served in U.S. forces in that war is largely unknown.

Because Canada allowed its military to decay dangerously between wars, we have developed few generals of world status. In the Great War, this was realized by German General Eric Ludendorff, who described Canadians as "lions led by donkeys". Our most effective and well-liked general, perhaps, was the British general, Julian Byng, who got muddied in the trenches with his Canadians, masterminded the Vimy victory, and later became our Governor-General. This aversion to maintaining an adequate military in peacetime has also caused thousands of wartime casualties due to inadequate training and preparation. Of Bomber Command's 73,741 casualties, 8,195 were killed in training.

For smaller peacekeeping duties, the U.N. has selected Canadian generals such as Burns, MacKenzie, Dallaire, and de Chastelain for leading roles. We have the talent when it gets a chance to be groomed.

While this study concentrates on those who served in the fighting forces, we cannot overlook the parents, wives, and siblings who were left behind. Not only did they have the anguish of worry over their departed warriors, but also endured shortages, greatly increased workloads, and crippling taxes.

The American Revolution - The United Empire Loyalists

Following Britain's withdrawal from the American Revolution due to the expense over the ongoing conflict with France, over 45,000 Loyalist families came to Canada: 35,000 to the Maritimes and 10,000 to Quebec (now Ontario and Quebec), although only 4,118 families submitted claims for lands and properties confiscated by the rebels. About 1,000 families came to Canada during the course of the American Revolution, but most were with the main exodus that began in 1782. There was a 'late' migration in 1792, prompted by Governor Simcoe's offer of 200 acres to each immigrant.

Ashford, Ann (nee Graham): The widow Ann and her children were aboard the gunboat Mississauga, captained by Joseph Bouchette, bearing the first Loyalist settlers to the shores of Hope Township, where Port Hope now stands, in June 1792. Her husband, Nathaniel, had died while they waited in Newark to return home after the war. Instead, she opted to settle in Upper Canada, where her eldest son, Nathaniel Jr., was headed on foot, driving the family's cattle through the dense forest to Smith's Creek. Ann's descendant, Volney Vaillancourt Ashford, left a promising career in law to enlist in the Union Army, where he served as quartermaster-sergeant for the Grizwold Light Cavalry. His brother-in-law, Edward Dodds, received the Congressional Medal of Honor for bravery at Ashby's Gap, where he lost an arm in the process. In 1887, Volney and his brother, Charles, became involved in the plot to overthrow the Hawaiian monarchy.

Bedford, Jonathan Sr.: According to an affidavit by Elias Smith, Jonathan was a resident of New York at the outbreak of the Revolution and joined the Royal Standard at White Plains in 1776, serving in the Bridge Master's department of the army as a carpenter. He was discharged in Halifax in 1783, and arrived at Hope Township in 1796, where he applied for land on 16 August. Granted 1,200 acres for himself and his family - consisting of lots 3, 4, and 11 in concession 3 - he settled on the east side of Smith's Creek. A year later, he applied for a further 200 acres for his wife, Ann, as the daughter of Solomon Bunnell UE and Anna Beardslie, but it is uncertain as to whether this was granted. [Lynn Bedford and M. Behme]

The American Revolution - The United Empire Loyalists

Goheen, Thomas Sr. (1753 - 1839): Thomas served in the British Army during the Revolution. He married Rebecca Clark in Bensalem, Pennsylvania, 03 March 1786. They had three children - Thomas Jr., Charles, and Elizabeth - before moving north to New York State, where Samuel was born, thence to present-day Kingston c1791. For performing meritorious service behind the British lines, yeoman Thomas Goheen was granted 200 acres between Telephone and Dale roads. The Old United Empire Loyalist List, published by Rose Publishing Co. in 1885, states that he "...was within the British lines before 1783 – by Order-in-Council: 24 November 1807". A fourth son, Jesse, was born here in 1801 and became a member of the 2nd Company, Northumberland Regiment, in 1828. Thomas' children were awarded 200-acre lots as descendants of a Loyalist. Thomas and Rebecca (Clark), and son Thomas and his wife, Levina Cryderman, are among the early burials in St. Mark's Anglican Church Cemetery. [Doris Goheen; 09 Aug 1965 Evening Guide UEL plaque dedication]

Harris, Myndert Sr. (1748 - 1823): Myndert was born on a farm near Poughkeepsie, New York. His father, Joseph, commanded a local company of militia in which Myndert served. It would appear that a rift developed in the family when Myndert joined Col. Hierlihy's battalion in 1777, as many of the family supported the rebels. He was taken prisoner, placed in solitary confinement, and eventually released on payment by his father. Following the war, he settled with his wife, Polly Youmans, and family in Digby, Nova Scotia, in 1783, receiving a land grant of 450 acres. Returning home some seven years later and finding himself unwelcome, he emigrated to Upper Canada, arriving at Smith's Creek in June 1793. On 22 June 1796, Myndert received the title to his land grant, being lot 3 in concession 1 – the first land grant to anyone, according to Archives Canada. [H.G. Harris]

Herkimer, Lawrence (1766 - 1819): After his father, Johan, was tried for treason, jailed, and escaped, those family members loyal to King George left New York, arriving at Fort Niagara in 1779, where he was made captain of the British batteaux. Lawrence also joined the British army, serving under his father for the last two years of the war, when the family was granted land in Kingston. By 1787, Lawrence, in partnership in the fur trade with Peter Smith, had a cabin on the east bank of the Ganaraska River. During the ten years he was in the Smith's Creek/Rice Lake area, he married an Ojibwa woman 'by Indian rites' and had three sons. By 1799, he was back in Kingston as a merchant, where he married Elizabeth Kirby. [Catherine Tozer: 210 Committee]

Johnson, Lawrence: A corporal in a loyalist regiment, Lawrence was taken prisoner and remained in a rebel prison in Pennsylvania for the duration. Among the first families to arrive in Smith's Creek in 1793, he was taken to court by Elias Smith for non-payment of passage from Nova Scotia. He and his family left the area after a few years. [Catherine Tozer: 210 Committee]

The American Revolution - The United Empire Loyalists

Marsh, Samuel William (1738 - 1813): A colonel with the Green Mountain Boys of the Vermont Militia, William served under Generals Burgoyne and Haldimand. Following the Revolution, he led 130 Loyalists to St. Jean, Quebec, where he was given the rank and pay of equivalent officers in the 84th Regiment. Land grants to his group and his children were spread about Ontario, including Port Britain. Elias Smith's 1799 report to the Honourable Peter Russell, who succeeded Governor Simcoe, included Samuel Marsh, his wife, Jane Ostrum, and two children as residents of Smith's Creek. At Port Britain, he had cleared 65 acres by 1799 and 130 by 1807. Operating a distillery (1806-1813), he charged five shillings per gallon of whiskey that was 50% alcohol. He died 21 Apr 1813, a week after his sister, Mary, who also died of spotted fever and is buried in the Marsh vault, Port Britain. [Taken from a copy of Colonel William Marsh, by Bruce Stinson, Alliston, Ontario, 1996, owned by Mary (Turck) Mack, a descendant of Col. Marsh. The population of Port Britain, three miles west of Port Hope, decreased from 350 in 1850 to 45 in 1995. As of 2009, a descendant of Col. Marsh still resided there.] Cemetery records state that he was the father of William S., Ruliph, Sally, Elizabeth, Mary, Susannah, Avalina, Robert B., and Emily.

Sexton, Jonathan (d1813) and Marsh, Elizabeth (d1841): Jonathan served in the Revolutionary Army as adjutant, coming to Hope Township in 1812, at which point the population of Upper Canada was 100,000. He died of the spotted fever 28 April 1813, and he and his wife are believed to be buried in the Marsh vault at Port Britain.

Soper, Leonard (1765 - 1831) and Marsh, Mary : These first settlers in Willow Beach, Port Britain, emigrated on horseback when Leonard's Vermont lands were confiscated. He was granted 1,200 acres and built the first house between Port Hope and Bowmanville, measuring 20x20 feet. He took his grain by canoe to Kingston for milling and, later, Napanee, until a grist mill was built in Smith's Creek in 1798. His daughter, Pamela, was the first white child born in Hope Township (1795). The cemetery database states a death date of 1838 at 75 years of age. Buried in Soper Cemetery near Port Britain. [The grave markers have been removed, but the remains are there.]

Smith, Elias (1736 - 1820) and Miller, Catherine (1745 - 1826): A Captain, he lost extensive properties in New York, arriving at Smith's Creek from Montreal in 1797. Husband of Catherine Miller (1745-1826). Father of David, Elias, John David, and widowed daughter, Catherine Sculthorp, he received 4,800 acres in land grants.

Smith, Peter J. (1752 - 1826): The son of Judge James Smith, Peter was 23 and living in Vermont when the war broke out. Making his way to Fort Niagara, he enlisted with Butler's Rangers, becoming a sergeant by the end of the war. He obtained land at Kingston, but made his living trading at the mouth of the Ganaraska River from 1784-1790. Here he built a cabin as both home and trading post, the only white man among the native Mississaugas, fluent in their language. By 1789, Smith's Creek was the most lucrative fur-trading post on the north shore between Queenston and Kingston. It was then that Smith moved back to Kingston, leaving the Smith's Creek post in charge of Lawrence Herkimer. At 42, he married Ann Cook, and in his later years, was appointed a justice of the peace. His obituary called him "a fine specimen of an English gentleman" who "carried with him evidence that he was no stranger to good dinners, and understood the qualities of good wine". He left behind more than 5,600 acres of land between Kingston and Hope Township to his widow and eight children.

[Catherine Tozer: 210 Committee]

Stevens, James (d1831, age 73): Little is recorded about James, but it is known that he and his wife were among the first Loyalist arrivals in 1793, settling on lot 2, concession 2. On the night of their arrival, a son, Simeon, was born, the first white child born in the township. James was also notable for being the first man to be tried before the First Court of the Quarterly Sessions. Although the charge was not described in Reeve's History of the Township of Hope (1967), it rated a fine of 52 cents. The trial is reported to have involved fifty township men and included a game of ball and a dinner. Reeve concluded with, "It can be assumed that a good time was had by all, including Stevens". He is likely buried in St. Mark's Anglican Church Cemetery.

Harold Reeve, in The History of the Township of Hope (1967), wrote:

It had been the custom in the American Colonies to grant large tracts of land to individuals with the understanding that they would bring in settlers and develop the land. This was tried in the Township of Hope. Elias Smith, Abraham Walton, and Jonathan Walton petitioned the Government in 1792 to open the Township for settlement with the agreement that when they had brought in forty settlers, the Township would be granted to the petitioners. By 1799 Simcoe had been replaced and the new Lieutenant-Governor evidently read the fine print.

Here is the report from the Canadian Archives Q-CCXCV 144:

1799 Township of Hope report on original nominee who undertook to settle the township had not brought in new settlers but those already settled in the province. All grants to be held up until confirmation of residence in township is given and five acres cleared and house built. Then the deed must be taken in three months or the lot declared open.

In the following letter from Elias Smith to the Hon. Peter Russell, he calls himself the late nominee, so evidently the contract had expired by June of 1799. Of the other two who contracted to settle the township, Abraham Walton was dead some time before 1801 and Jonathan was not a resident. He returned to the United States and, by bringing trading goods by schooner and by efforts to persuade Americans to come to Hope Township, he maintained an interest in the settlement.

“To His Honor Peter Russell, Esquire, President administering the Government of Upper Canada In Council.

The Memorial of Capt. Elias Smith late nominee of Township of Hope humbly sheweth that your memorialist in the summer of 1797 gave into the Surveyor General's Office a return of persons settled in the Township of Hope, and of sundry locations made under warrants of Survey.

That having lately made a strict examination of the present actual settlers in the said township, your memorialist finds that several alterations have taken place since his last return. Your memorialist, therefore, respectfully begs leave to lay before your Honor in Council a Return of the present settlers in the township which he humbly submits to your Honor's wisdom – and as in duty bound will ever pray.

York 16 June 1799
Elias Smith”

The War of 1812

By 1812, Hope Township had a population of 510, of which 100 were in Smith's Creek. Of the 510, only 123 were men above the age of 16. There were also 105 women, 143 boys, and 139 girls. Members of the Militia from outlying areas would congregate here every 04 June - King George IV's birthday - for annual military training, bringing their own guns and ammunition.

When the war commenced, the Durham Regiment marched up the barely-passable Danforth Road to York and Chippewa to face the invading troops. Wooden fences along the way were sacrificed to fires for the troops to cook their food and heat their drinks.

Chris Robins, a Cobourg West High School teacher, has researched the Northumberland Regiment. Names on the pay lists that could belong to Port Hoppers include: Captains John Spencer and Thomas Ward, Lieutenant Roger Woolcut (recommended for Captain rank), and Privates William Bradley, John G. Nichols, John Nix, John and William Smith, Henry Thompson, Isaac Turk, and James White.

The Northumberland Regiment did not take part in the fighting. Its main wartime responsibility involved escorting prisoners from York to Kingston. The Durham Regiment fought in the defence of York and a company was taken prisoner when it fell.

Baldwin, William Warren: (25 Apr 1775:Ireland - 1844:York). Lieutenant-Colonel. Commanded the 1st Regiment of Durham. Son of Colonel Robert Baldwin, former Commanding Officer. Both resided at York.

Bowen, Abraham: (1782 - 25 Apr 1865). Buried at Canton.

Burns, John: (1776 - 09 February 1837). Captain on Smith Creek's 1812 Militia roll call (Flank Company). Later promoted to Major. Married Betsy Soper 21 July 1804. Surveyor and School Board Secretary.

Gifford, Ezra: (died 02 Jan 1854).

Gifford, Gardner: (died 09 Mar 1842). Likely buried at St. Mark's.

Harris, Myndert Jr.: (19 Apr 1785 - 23 Jun 1878). Son of Myndert Sr., UE. Husband of Phoebe Hawkins. Buried at Canton.

Harris, Thomas:

Haskell, Josiah: (1784 - 1860). Buried St. Mark's Anglican Cemetery.

Hawkins, James: (1783 - 25 Dec 1868). Son of Rev. Charles and Elizabeth. Buried at Canton.

Kimball, Jared: (d 24 Mar 1867, age 92). Buried at Newtonville.

Marsh, Samuel William: (died 21 Apr 1813 of cholera). On 1812 Militia rolls.

Sculthorpe, James: (25 Apr 1792:N.Y. - 07 Jun 1872:Port Hope). Son of Catherine and James. Volunteered for Militia in 1812. Stationed in Kingston for six months. Returned to Smith's Creek as Sergeant. Ordered farmers with their sleds to convey men and munitions to York. Married Hannah Thompson (d1828); two children. Married Susannah Marsh (1806-1885:Port Britain) 1830; five children. Buried St. John's Anglican Cemetery.

Sexton, Jonathan: (1755 - 28 Apr 1813, of cholera). On 1812 Militia rolls. Husband of Elizabeth Marsh (d1841). Presumed interred in the Marsh vault, Port Britain.

Sexton, Zepheniah: Married Nancy Soper, daughter of Leonard and Mary (Marsh).

Smith, John David: (20 Oct 1786 - 30 Mar 1849:Port Hope). Son of Elias Smith, UE.

Soper, Leonard: (died 01 Mar 1838, age 75). Husband of Mary Marsh. Buried Soper Cemetery; stone moved to Bowmanville 1948.

Stevens, James: (died 31 Aug 1863, age 69). Buried at Bowmanville.

Ward, Thomas: (1770 - 1861). Captain in charge of a company patrolling the York to Presqu'ile shoreline. Husband of Mary. Buried St. Mark's Anglican Cemetery.

Williams, John Tucker: (1789:Cornwall, England - 1851:Port Hope). Member of the Royal Navy under Lord Nelson, he served on one of the three ten-gun, 200-ton warships on Lake Ontario and settled in Port Hope after the war. 1837-1838, a colonel commanding the 1st Regiment of Durham. Buried St. Mark's Anglican Cemetery. Port Hope's first elected Mayor (1850). Husband of Sarah Ward (1807-1888) and father of the "Hero of Batoche", Col. Arthur Trefusis Henage Williams, in capturing Louis Riel. Buried St. Mark's Anglican Church.

The Rebellion of 1837-1838

According to Arnot Craick's Port Hope Historical Sketches (1901), the 1837 annual muster in Port Hope occurred 04 June, after which Colonel John Tucker Williams organized a company that trained on the 'flats', with the troops becoming fairly proficient. When word arrived by runner in December of the rebellion in Toronto, there was a rush of volunteers, but the Lieutenant-Governor requested only 125 men from each of Durham and Northumberland.

The Port Hope Rifles served in Drummondville and Chippewa, and 100 cavalry and 100 riflemen were mobilized in Port Hope to go to Toronto.

Of the 38 officers of the 1st Battalion of the 1st Regiment of Durham, the following were from Port Hope and Hope Township.

The Crimean War

(1854 - 1856)

Canada did not contribute as a nation, but individuals did, such as Lieutenant Alexander Dunn [not a Port Hope area citizen] who, with the 11th Hussars, won the Victoria Cross in the Charge of the Light Brigade 25 October 1854.

The withdrawal of British troops from Canada to join the Crimean Expeditionary Force led to the establishment of a permanent Canadian Militia in 1855. The rush of volunteers convinced the government that conscription would never be necessary. In 1857, the Militia strength in Durham totalled 5,487 men. For the 1861 census, there were 39,115 people in Durham. In 1864, there were 7,015 volunteers for 1,590 militia positions.

The Fenian Raids

About 10,000 Irish veterans of the U.S. Civil War thought they could support uprisings (which never occurred) in Ireland against British rule by invading Canada. John O'Neil crossed the Niagara River, captured Fort Erie, and made his headquarters at Lime Ridge. The Fenians defeated a unit of the Canadian Militia at Ridgeway (02 June 1866), but withdrew to the U.S. when a stronger force was sent to the area. On 15 November 1866, the Port Hope Infantry - three officers and 65 men, under Lt.-Col. Arthur T.H. Williams - was called up to serve at Windsor and Sandwich until 06 April 1867.

Raids were also made into New Brunswick, Quebec, and Manitoba, but served only to unite Canadians and promote Confederation. While President Johnson had many of the Fenians arrested, the United States has never compensated Canada for allowing these raids to be launched from the U.S..

John R. Thysen transcribed the Library and Archives Canada records pertaining to applications for his book, Canada General Service Medal Roll 1866-1870. The Canada General Service Medal was awarded to members of the Imperial and Canadian forces who had taken part in the suppression of the Fenian raids and Riel's first rebellion, the latter being generally referred to as the Red River expedition. Because the medal was not issued until 1899, it was awarded only if applied for and the recipient must have participated in one of the following duties:

- Been on active service in the field.
- Served as guard at any point where an attack from the enemy was expected.
- Been detailed for some specific service or duty.

Many veterans were deceased by this time and obviously did not receive a medal. There were 16,668 of the medals awarded, and of these, 15,300 were awarded to Canadian units.

Port Hope E. Company

A CGS medal was also issued to the following veteran of the Fenian campaigns.

Sidey, William H.*

The Riel Rebellion

(1885)

In March 1885, Colonel Arthur Trefusis Heneage Williams, whose statue is situated in front of the Port Hope Town Hall, was recruiting a company in Port Hope to take west to combat the Riel Rebellion in Saskatchewan. With other companies recruited in Millbrook, Bowmanville, Peterborough, Lindsay, Belleville, and Kingston, they assembled in Kingston, where eight companies were formed into the Midland Battalion.

Disregarding orders, Williams led the attack at Batoche that resulted in Riel's capture. With victory won, Colonel Williams took ill and died of a fever 04 July. The battalion was ordered home via Port Hope in order to take part in his funeral 21 July from St. John's Anglican Church. The battalion camped in the large park on Ward Street at the eastern end of town. There were over twenty campfires throughout the park. After the funeral and a parade through town, the individual companies left by train for their respective hometowns. On 22 July, the Midland Regiment and Battalion were disbanded after a four-month life span.

In his diary, Sergeant Walter Stewart mentioned many people but did not indicate which were from Port Hope. He dwelled on the eagerness of the troops, hardships of travel, the skirmishes, and the Battle of Batoche. He told of large welcoming crowds in Winnipeg, Owen Sound, and Port Hope, but recorded no misbehaviour on behalf of the Midlands. Regrettably, in the overall picture, the Ontario Militia achieved no glory. Whereas the 400 British troops were well behaved, 800 Ontario militiamen went on a rampage against the Metis who were trying to defend their lands while remaining loyal British subjects.

Adams, Henry: (1806:Kingston - 13 Nov 1894:Port Hope). Moved to Hope Township 1836. Son, Alan, and two daughters. Lieutenant-Colonel. St. John's Cemetery.

Beatty, John:

Brown, Ted: Captain. Killed 12 May 1885 by a sniper while leading his men in the attack on Batoche. His mother was living in Peterborough when his cousin, Walter Stewart, visited her by train from Port Hope 28 Jul, bringing Ted's few possessions to her.

Dingwall, Roderick: (1849 - 03 Aug 1915). Long active in the Militia. Hardware merchant, Presbyterian elder and Sunday School teacher. Lieutenant-Colonel.

Fisher, Alfred Francis: (1858 - 1943). Family with six children arrived in Quebec 19 Jun 1864, losing all possessions in a train fire in Cobourg. Two elderly McDonald sisters gave him room and board for three years while he worked in Cobourg and Port Hope. He then worked for four years on a farm 150 miles north of Cobourg. He walked the hundred miles to Toronto for employment. Sent to Port Arthur, he joined the RCMP. At Athabasca, he was with Captain Dickens, grandson of Charles Dickens, when the Riel Rebellion broke out, at which time he joined the 90th Battalion in Winnipeg, taking part in numerous battles. Wounded at Fish Creek. Married nurse Emma Johnson. Five children. [John Hall provided this data from the diary of Francis Fisher.]

Janes, T.F.: Captain.

Ormsby, John Yeaden: (1864:Co. Mayo, Ireland - 01 Nov 1944). To Canada as a young man, settling in Port Hope in 1836. Served with Bolton's Mounted Infantry, helping to draw the guns to Battleford for an engagement. Survived by wife, Janet Susie Grahame; daughter, Mrs. Philip Ketchum of Port Hope; son, Gerald Y. of Toronto; and two unmarried sisters, of Co. Wicklow, Ireland. [Evening Guide, 01 Nov 1944]

Preston, John Alexander Victor: Captain.

Sanders, E.H.: Captain.

Smart, Robert Wallace: (03 Dec 1864 - 04 Jun 1960). Lieutenant.

Stewart, Walter F.: Staff Sergeant. Maintained a daily diary 01 Apr - 31 Jul 1885), which indicated that his family lived in Toronto, Port Hope, Peterborough, and Winnipeg. He was in Toronto when he heard of Col. Williams forming a company in Port Hope, so he wired his application. He refers to Alf and Fred Budge as two of his old Port Hope schoolmates and from whom he bought a civilian suit on being discharged. He tells of the cold journey by train, boxcar, and flatcars with three gaps in the rail line of 45, 22, and 29 miles, which meant travel by sled and foot. On good tracks, the train reached speeds of 40 mph. On the South Saskatchewan, their boat, the Northcote, made 12 miles the first day, 23 Apr; and eight the second, running aground frequently on sandbars. This was repeated daily until reaching Saskatoon on 04 May. He tells of various skirmishes and the Battle of Batoche. Captain French, Barton, Christie, Laidlaw, and Wrighton - all Midlands - are reported being killed in Batoche, but he does not indicate if any were Port Hoppers.

Taylor, Thomas: See "The Boer War."

Williams, Arthur Trefusis Heneage: Colonel. Son of John Tucker Williams, Port Hope's first mayor. In 1885, he commanded the Midland Battalion in the defeat of Riel and the Metis at Batoche. He died of fever 04 Jul 1885 and was embalmed for shipment to Port Hope. Arthur, Trefusis, and Heneage are street names in Port Hope, situated on the former Williams' estate. His son, Victor, was a WWI general.

The Boxer Rebellion – China

The Boxer Rebellion, also called The Boxer Uprising by some historians, was an anti-colonialist, anti-Christian movement of the Society of Righteous and Harmonious Fists (known as 'Boxers' in English) in China between 1898 and 1901. The uprising took place in response to imperialist expansion into China, involving European opium traders, political invasion, economic manipulation, and missionary evangelism. In 1898, local organizations emerged in Shandong and were initially suppressed by the Qing Dynasty of China. Later, the Dynasty attempted to expel foreign influence from China. Under the slogan, "Support Qing, destroy the Western", Boxers across North China attacked mission compounds.

In June 1900, Boxer fighters gathered in Beijing to besiege the foreign embassies. On 21 June, the conservative faction of the Imperial Court induced the Empress Dowager Cixi, who ruled in the emperor's name, to declare war on the foreign powers that had diplomatic representation in Beijing. Diplomats, foreign civilians, soldiers, and some Chinese Christians retreated to the Legation Quarter where they stayed for 55 days until the Eight-Nation Alliance brought 20,000 armed troops to defeat the Boxers.

The Boxer Protocol of 07 September 1901 ended the uprising and provided for severe punishments, including an indemnity of 67 million pounds, to be paid over a course of 39 years to the eight nations involved. The Qing Dynasty was greatly weakened and was eventually overthrown by the 1911 revolution which led to the establishment of the Chinese Republic. [Wikipedia]

Burton, Francis D'Aguilar: Born in Port Hope 26 Mar 1870, the youngest of eight children. He was a merchant in China when caught up in the Rebellion. He was a member of the Shanghai Volunteer Forces for five years; then spent seventeen months with the 15th British Fusiliers, in which he was a lieutenant.

The Boer War

(11 October 1899 - 31 May 1902)

The First Anglo-Boer War (1880-1881), also known as the "Transvaal War," was a relatively brief conflict in which Boers - descendants of Dutch settlers (translates as "Farmers") - successfully rebelled against British rule in the Transvaal and re-established their independence lost in 1877 when the Boers fought the British in order to regain the independence they had given up to obtain British help against the Zulus.

The Second Anglo-Boer War (1899-1902), by contrast, was a lengthy war, involving large numbers of troops from many British possessions, which ended with the conversion of the Boer republics into British colonies with a promise of limited self-government. These colonies later formed part of the Union of South Africa. The British fought directly against the Transvaal and the Orange Free State. The bloodshed that was seen during the war was alarming.

There were two main factors that contributed to this. First, many of the British soldiers were physically unprepared for the environment and poorly trained for the tactical conditions they faced. As a result, British losses were high due to both disease and combat. Second, the policies of "scorched earth" and civilian internment, adopted by the British in response to the Boer guerrilla campaign, ravaged the civilian populations in the Transvaal and the Orange Free State.

Recruiting started in Canada – with a population of 5.5 million - on 14 October 1899. The first 1,000 recruits (2nd Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, under the command of Lt.-Col. William D. Otter) sailed from Quebec 30 October 1899. The second contingent of 6,000 volunteers included three artillery batteries: the 3rd contingent, Strathcona's Horse, funded by Lord Strathcona (Donald Smith, the Canadian High Commissioner to the UK); the South African Constabulary; and the 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th, and 6th Regiments of the Canadian Mounted Rifles, recruited and paid for by Britain. The Canadian government's financial contribution was $2,830,965.

Of the 7,369 Canadians enlisted, 244 were killed: half by disease, mainly enteric fever. Canadians won four Victoria Crosses, nineteen Distinguished Service Orders, seventeen Distinguished Conduct Medals, one hundred seventeen Mentioned-in-Dispatches, and nursing sister, Georgina Pope, one of twelve serving nurses, received the Royal Red Cross.

Killed

Evans, Charles Napier, #175: Resided on Walton Street, one door west of Ross Funeral Chapel. Son of James. Brother served in WWI. Charles was with the 2nd Canadian Mounted Rifles, when, on 31 Mar 1902, he was defending an outpost at Kleinhard's River, Transvaal, during a Boer attack. Running low on ammunition, all six of his friends were killed, including Captain W.P.K. Milligan of Newtonville, Ontario. Evans had an opportunity to surrender, but chose to fight on and was killed. He is buried in the Ottosdal Garden of Remembrance.

Charles served both in the Boer War and WWI. He operated a shoe repair business on John Street. He died 23 Dec 1949 at 81 Dorset Street, Port Hope.

Group Enlistment

It appears that a group of friends in Port Hope made a sudden decision to enlist and rush off to Ottawa to join "D" Battery of the Royal Canadian Field Artillery as it was about to leave for Quebec City for South Africa. The attesting officer for the 14th Field Battery in Port Hope, William McLean, was running out of attesting papers, so on 30 and 31 December 1899, he signed up two volunteers per sheet with the following RCFA Service numbers. These were not exclusive but were also used by other units.

Number	Name	Number	Name
338	Taylor, Thomas*	348	Hall, Victor*
339	Sandercock, Thomas*	349	Gamble, Robert*
340	Burnham, H.	350	Boyle, Robert A.
341	Outram, Frederick*	351	No Port Hope match
342	No Port Hope match	352	Leach, Wilfred
343	Scollie, Frederick	353	Kerr, Thomas*
344	Davy, Frederick*	354	Irish, Vance
345	Welsh, William*	355	Evatt, Ernest
346	Read, Howard*	356	Keeler, Harry
347	Ough, Charles*

Of the eleven who left Port Hope 05 January 1900 for Ottawa, ten (marked with an *) returned for a joyous welcome in Port Hope 13 January 1901, missed by Ernest Evatt, who had died in South Africa of enteric fever. No Port Hope unit served as such in the war. Port Hope volunteers went singly or in groups to join other units.

World War I - The Great War

(04 August 1914 - 11 November 1918)

In 1914, before the outbreak of war, there were only 3,110 men in the armed forces. Of a Canadian population of seven million, 644,636 men and 4,518 women (mostly nurses) enlisted. 60,969 were killed and 138,166 were wounded.

On 03 Oct 1914, over 30,000 Canadians in thirty-three ships sailed from Gaspé Bay, Quebec. They arrived in the U.K. 10-14 October 1914 and in France in February 1915. Of the 644,636 men, 30.9% were casualties: 9.5% killed, 21.4% wounded. 2,504 nurses served in Britain, France, Gallipoli, Salonika, and Alexandria. Fifty-six were killed. The Canadian Expeditionary Force (CEF) was formed into 260 battalions. The RCN had 5,100 men with another 3,000 serving in the RN and RNAS, and 18,000 in the RFC. Port Hope had 94 killed of the 671 who served = 14%.

Port Hope Recruits

Most who signed up in Port Hope had numbers starting with 412 and 805, but these blocks were shared with Lindsay, Bowmanville, Napanee, Belleville, and Picton, often with the same recruiters. In the early days, many were sent to Valcartier, Barriefield, or Niagara for enlistment. Many who signed up in Port Hope in local regiments or battalions were later transferred to a wide variety of other units. Many Port Hoppers joined units in Cobourg, Belleville, Kingston, Oshawa, Peterborough, and Toronto, thus adding difficulties in locating them in later years.

Port Hope Regiments

Port Hope Regiments by year

Year	Regiment
1793	The Militia Act of Upper Canada. Men, 16-50, were to be enrolled and assembled in Port Hope for one day, once or twice a year. They were each required to bring a musket and six rounds of ammunition. There was no pay.
1812	The 1 st Regiment of the Durham Militia was under the command of Col. Robert Baldwin and then Lt.-Col. William Warren Baldwin, both residing in York. A company saw action at York and survivors were captured in 1813 when York fell. Col. John Tucker Williams was CO from 1827-1838.
1837	The Port Hope Rifles and a troop of cavalry of 100 men each were sent to subdue the McKenzie Rebellion in Toronto. Volunteers supplied their own weapons, thirty cartridges, and uniforms.
1858	Volunteer Corps was formed, including one Port Hope cavalry troop of three officers and forty-two men under Capt. R.W. Smart, and one rifle company of three officers and fifty men under Capt. Augustus Roche.
1860	The Durham Light Cavalry, under Captain Robert Smart, escorted the Prince of Wales (the future Edward VII) on his visit to Port Hope.
1865	Fenian Raids: The Port Hope Light Infantry Volunteers Company. Two Durham companies were called up: one, under Lt.-Col. Arthur T.H. Williams, was stationed in Windsor for four months.
1866	The 1 st Regiment of the Durham Militia was divided into the 45 th West Durham Regiment (Orono, Bowmanville, Newcastle, and Cartwright) and the 46 th East Durham Regiment (Hope, Cavan, and Manvers) with #1, #2, and #3 Companies in Port Hope. Port Hope officers: Lt.-Col. A.T.H. Williams, Major William Fraser, Captains S.S. Smith, and F.A. Benson, Lieutenants Robert Dingwall and J.N. Kirchhoffer, and ensigns J.H. Helm and T. Dixon Craig. The 46 th was affiliated with the British 46 th Regiment of Foot that sailed from Ireland to America during the Revolution and acquitted itself well. Its motto, Semper Paratus , was adopted by the 46 th East Durhams.
1870	A drill shed was built in Port Hope by Samuel Williams at a cost of $3,000. This served through WWII.
1885	The Midland Regiment. Assembled in Kingston 01 April under Lt.-Col. Arthur T.H. Williams, it left six days later for the West. It existed for the four months of the Riel Rebellion.
1900	The 46 th Durham Regiment.
1913	Brick armouries were built in Orono, Millbrook, and Blackstock.
1920	The Durham Regiment
1936	The Midland Regiment was re-born by joining the Durham and Northumberland Regiments.

Year	Regiment
1940 (July)	Midland Regiment mobilized with HQ in Cobourg. Commanding officer: Lt.-Col. J.C. Gamey, MM ED 1940-1944. There were five companies: Bowmanville, Campbellford, Cobourg, Lindsay, and 'C' Company in Port Hope. First posted to Ottawa, it then served on guard duty in St. John, Niagara Falls, Edmonton, and Prince Rupert. The Regiment supplied reinforcements to the 1 st Infantry Brigade, Winnipeg Grenadiers, Queen's Own Rifles, Royal Montreal Regiment, Irish Regiment, Cameron Highlanders, 48 th Highlanders, British Paratroopers, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Canadian Armoured Corps, and Stormont, Dundas, and Glengarry Highlanders. Post war COs: Lt.-Col. Lyall Carr, until promoted to brigadier; then Lt.-Col. J.G. Leuty until 1954.
1954	The Midlands are absorbed by the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, due to government cutbacks. Armouries are closed except for Peterborough and Belleville.

The Durham and Midland Regimental Colours are preserved in St. Mark's Anglican Church, Port Hope. Rifle Companies do not have colours, as such. Their Colours are their drums.

The Canadian Expeditionary Force (C.E.F.)

The C.E.F. was the designation of the field force created by Canada for service overseas in the First World War. Units of the C.E.F. were further divided into field formation in France, where they were largely organized into divisions and eventually a Canadian Corps within the British Army. Four divisions ultimately served on the front line. The Germans nicknamed them 'Stormtroopers' for their great combat efficiency.

It eventually numbered 260 numbered infantry battalions, two named infantry battalions (The Royal Canadian Regiment and Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry), 13 mounted rifle regiments, 13 railway troop battalions, and five pioneer battalions, as well as numerous ancillary units including field and heavy artillery batteries, ambulance, medical, dental, forestry, labour, tunnelling, cyclist, and service units.

A distinct entity within the Force was the Canadian Machine Gun Corps, consisting of several motor machine gun battalions, the Eatons, Yukon, and Borden Motor Machine Gun Batteries, and nineteen machine gun companies. During the summer of 1918, these units were consolidated into four machine gun battalions, one being attached to each of the four divisions in the Canadian Corps.

The C.E.F. was initially comprised of mostly volunteers. After the Battle of the Somme, Canada was in desperate need to replenish its supply of soldiers, however, there were very few volunteers to replace them. The recruiting effort in Quebec had failed, and Canada turned to its only unused option: conscription. English Canadians generally supported the war effort as they felt stronger ties to the British Empire. After visiting Britain for a meeting of First Ministers in May 1917, Prime Minister Robert Borden announced that he would be introducing the Military Service Act. On 29 August 1917, the Act was passed, allowing Borden to conscript men across the country if he felt that it was necessary. Ultimately, only 24,132 conscripts arrived in France before the end of the war. [Wikipedia]

The following article, referring to the appeals against compulsory service, appeared on the front page of the 25 January 1918 Port Hope Evening Guide. The codes are unexplained in the article.

Port Hope Soldiers Killed

Soldiers marked with an asterisk (*) have their names inscribed on the Cenotoph in Central Park. Those with two asterisks () are also included in the 1919 Book of Remembrance:

In 1919, a committee was established by Rev. James A. Elliott to create a written memorial to those Port Hope men and women who were actively involved in the Great War. Families of those who gave their lives were asked to submit a short biography to be included with their service records, as well as a photograph to be hung in the Town Hall. At a public memorial service at the Port Hope Armouries on Sunday, 29 June 1919, one copy and the photographs were presented to the Mayor and Town Council, while the other copy was presented to the Library Board. Both copies are now preserved at the Port Hope Archives.

In 2007, as a fund-raiser for the Port Hope Archives to mark the 90th anniversary of the battle of Vimy Ridge, the Book of Remembrance was re-issued (500 copies) with updated information, the soldiers' photographs, letters home from the Front as published in the local newspaper, and additional photographs from the Archives' collection.

Formation of the Royal Air Force

The Royal Flying Corps (RFC) was the air arm of the British Army before and during the First World War until it merged with the Royal Naval Air Service (RNAS) on 1 April 1918 to form the Royal Air Force (RAF).

The RFC formed in May 1912, and the RNAS were absorbed into the new RAF 01 April 1918.

From a force of 146 pilots and 100 aircraft in August 1914, the RAF had, in November 1918, 27,000 officers, 290,000 other ranks, and 22,677 aircraft in 188 squadrons. Of the 18,000 Canadians who enlisted in the RFC/RNAS/RAF, 1,200 were killed. The average life expectancy for pilots at the Front was three weeks.

Among the world's top 45 air aces were seventeen German, eight Canadian, seven British, five French, two Irish, two South African, two Australian, one Belgian, and one Austrian.

Chisholm, J.F.: Born 1896, son of W.C. Chisholm of the Grand Trunk Railway. Spent two years at the Front. Captain, DFC. Shot down over Holland and taken prisoner. Liberated Nov 1918. 311 CEF Chisholms are listed at the National Archives, but no J.F.

Roper, Peter, J5010: Flying Officer, Pilot. Fighter pilot, shot down over North Africa, taken prisoner, shipped to Italy, and transferred to Stalag Luft III, North compound, in November 1944.

Battle of Hong Kong

Of the 1,975 Royal Rifles and Winnipeg Grenadiers who arrived 16 November, undertrained and under-armed, 557 were killed in either the 19-day battle (06-25 December 1941), bayoneted after surrender, or died of harsh treatment and malnutrition as slave labourers. Although U.S. Occupation Forces did execute about 900 Japanese soldiers for war crimes, the U.S., followed by Canada and the U.K., sacrificed Japanese compensation to survivors to the goal of turning Japan into an ally in the struggle against Chinese and Soviet communism.

Compensation: Unlike Germany, Japan has not acknowledged its guilt and has paid no compensation. Compensation from the Canadian government did not start until 1952 when $1 per day of captivity was paid, raised to $2 in 1958. In December 1998, this was raised to $18 per day to a maximum of $24,000 (£10,000). By comparison, the UK has paid its Hong Kong POWs only £1,071. By 1999, 382 surviving Canadian POWs and 530 widows had been paid $21,888,000.

The following soldiers were taken prisoner at the battle of Hong Kong, 25 December 1941:

Archibald, James, C65411: (1913 - 05 Sep 1985). Charles Street. Emigrated from Scotland at age 15, attended an agricultural college, worked on a farm near Port Hope for three years, then joined the Port Hope Sanitary company before enlisting in 1940 in the Midland Regiment. Rifleman. In 1941, he was sent to Hong Kong and was taken prisoner. Private. He was terribly crippled and was always sickly after his treatment at the hands of the Japanese. St. John's cemetery. [Additional material from Brian Jiggins]

Jiggins, Charles Frank, C65439: (02 Apr 1915:Welcome - 09 Sep 1993:Port Hope Hospital). Son of William James and Mary Ann (Wallace). Brother of William Albert, Victor Wallace, George Edward, Gordon Richards, Marie Winifred, Delbert James, and Dorothy Bernice. Attended school in Welcome. Private. A rifleman, he was transported aboard the Tatsuta Maru to Tsurumi POW Camp. Husband of Nellie Louise Park. Father of Margaret, Janet, and Frank. Seymour Street. Welcome Cemetery. [Brian Jiggins]

McKay, Andrew John, C40618: (16 Feb 1921:Lindsay – 15 Oct 1983). King Street. Originally Durham Regiment. Rifleman. Sent to Hong Kong with the Royal Rifles. Lindsay St. Mary's RC Cemetery. [Additonal material from Brian Jiggins]

Snell, Felix Maxwell, C57527: (1918 - 27 Aug 1996). Charles Street. Worked in Harvey Mitchell's drug store. Enlisted in the SD&Gs 21 Apr 1941. Sent to Hong Kong with the Royal Rifles. He was crippled from work as a slave labourer and had difficulty walking as one leg was shorter than the other. He operated a delivery business, picking up the Toronto Star in Cobourg and then distributing them to outlets in Port Hope. Married Donna Dickerson. Children: Tim and Tammy. Union Cemetery veterans' plot.

Thompson, Clarence Walton, C65460: (1918 - 02 July 1969). Rifleman, Royal Rifles. Married Vida Gertrude Bate (1920-1992). Awarded the 1939-1945 Star, Pacific Star, 1939-1945 Defence Medal, Canadian Volunteer Service Medal with Overseas & Hong Kong Clasps, and 1939-1945 War Medal. Union Cemetery veterans' plot.

Killed

Potts, William George, C57528: (24 Jul 1921:Campbellford – on or around 21 Dec 1941). One of five children of Walter and Eva Maud (Jewell). Brother of John, Elsie & Max. Cancilla, Vincent James Paul "Jimmy", SC65417: (07 Feb 1920 – 1972). Joined the Durham Regiment, NPAM, pre-war with Mike Lewis and George Sweanor. Always jovial and likeable, Jimmy made a good companion. He transferred to the Midland Regiment, and was disappointed in narrowly missing the draft to Hong Kong. He served in Italy as a cook. After the war, he worked as a cook in Britain. He married Doreen Whitehead in England, and she and their child followed him to Canada in 1946 where Jimmy and Josephine's husband, Ernie, had opened a retail and wholesale fruit business on Walton Street, east of Bramley. John Hall worked for them in the summer of 1946. Doreen's brother, Tom, who had served in the Royal Navy, visited them there. Jimmy then went back in the Army and was serving with the British as senior cook in Hanover, Germany, where Lt. John Hall, also a Cavan Street boy, met him in 1953. Later, Warrant Officer Jimmy Cancilla was senior cook and mess steward for the officers' mess at Camp Borden. St. Mary's RC Cemetery, Port Hope.

The Cancilla family was composed of five boys: John (who ran a business in Bowmanville), Dominic, Charles, Antonio, and Vincent Paul (Jimmy), and three girls: Rosa, Josephine (a church soloist with Ruth Sweanor), and Marie. Their father, Salvador (Sam), spoke poor English and worked in the File Factory boiler room. They lived on Cavan Street.
